General provisions

Article 2

- 1 If a performer has transferred the rights of their performance to the producer of a phonogram and has received a nonregular compensation in respect thereof, the performer has the right to receive an additional annual compensation from that producer for each year following the 50th year after the phonogram was first put into circulation in a lawful manner or, if such is sooner, has been published, pursuant to Section 9b subsection 1 of the WNR.
- 2 Pursuant to Section 15g subsection 1 of the WNR, the producer is required to pay this additional compensation to Sena and Sena is obliged to distribute this additional compensation among the entitled performer.

Article 3

- 1 The compensation referred to in Article 2 amounts to twenty per cent (20%) of the income acquired by the producer of the phonogram by reproducing, distributing and making the phonogram available in the year prior to the year for which the compensation is paid.
- 2 For the purpose of calculating the amount of the compensation, income is defined as the income enjoyed by the producer before deduction of costs. The completeness and timeliness of this responsibility comes under the producer's regular audit. Income from renting out, broadcasting and the compensation for private copies, as well as the reasonable compensation received by the producer from Sena for publishing the phonogram is not taken into account in the calculation of the income.
- 3 Pursuant to Section 15g subsection of the 3 WNR, the producer is obliged to state its income to Sena, as referred to in paragraph 2, which it acquired by means of the phonogram, before 1 April of each calendar year. Failing to fulfil this responsibility or deliberately providing inaccurate or incomplete information is punishable pursuant to Section 15g subsection 4 of the WNR.

- 4 The statement of income pursuant to paragraph 3 of this article must be accompanied by a statement of the name of the (main) artist(s) and, if known, the session musicians who collaborated as such on the relevant phonogram, the year the relevant phonogram was first released, the label name, the title of the track and the ISRC if applicable.
- 5 The producer transfers the compensation due in accordance with paragraph 1 each year before 1 April into a separate Sena bank account accompanied by a file that is delivered electronically in a format indicated by Sena, which shows the specification of the compensation as referred to in paragraph 4.
- 6 When so requested by Sena, the producer will be obliged to provide additional information for the purpose of identifying the right phonogram and/or the right performers of the relevant phonogram.

Article 4

- 1 Each performer is obliged to notify Sena, in the manner indicated by Sena, of the phonograms on which they have collaborated as a performer and in respect of which they have transferred their rights to the producer in return for a non-regular compensation. The performer is also obliged to state a bank account, if possible in the Netherlands, into which bank account Sena can transfer the compensation reserved for the performer, or a performer established in the Netherlands designated as a payment address, while stating the account number of this performer.
- 2 Payment will only be made if the performer has concluded an exploitation agreement with Sena, or if Sena has concluded an agreement with a sister organisation representing the performing artist in question.
- 3 When so requested by Sena, a performer will be obliged to demonstrate to Sena on what grounds that they consider that they are a rightsholder in connection with Article 2 paragraph 1, for example by submitting contracts that have been concluded, a studio/recording attendance list or other documents from which it is evident that the performer collaborated on the relevant phonograms.
- 4 In the case of well-founded doubts concerning the basis of the claim for compensation presented by the performer, and in the event this claim is disputed by another performing artist, Sena will have the right to suspend payment until it has been properly established that the alleged claim is justified, if necessary by a disputes committee as referred to in Article 6 of the Sena General Distribution Regulations.

Distribution basis

Article 5

- 1 The amounts available for distribution will be paid to the performers on the basis of the data received by Sena from the producer upon collection of the additional compensation and the other data that are known to Sena, less the costs associated with general management.
- 2 Article 26 paragraph 2 of Sena's articles of association is applied accordingly, with the exception of the reference to Article 26 paragraph 1.
